

CITS 2013 GENERAL CHAIR'S MESSAGE

Welcome to the 2013 International Conference on Computer, Information and Telecommunication Systems, CITS 2013. This year's conference marks the second CITS, which is being held on annual basis.

CITS 2013 offers a unique forum for researchers and practitioners from academia, industry, business, and government to share their expertise results and research findings in all areas of Computer, Information and Telecommunication Systems.

This year's conference includes an outstanding technical program, distinguished keynote speakers, and insightful tutorials. We have chosen the campus of the University of Piraeus, Piraeus-Athens, Greece. The site provides excellent meeting facilities and will be a comfortable setting for our conference.

The CITS 2013 technical program consists of several parallel tracks and will last for two days. We decided to run it for two days in order to cut on expenses. Each track consists of several sessions of top quality papers. The topics covered in the program include, among others, wireless networks, wireless sensor networks, computer networks and telecommunications, admission control in networking, parallel and distributed computing, databases and data mining, hardware/architecture/real-time systems, MIMO systems, modeling and simulation, performance evaluation, digital signal processing, image processing, pattern recognition, multimedia systems and video processing, character and pattern recognition, artificial intelligence, neural networks, fuzzy logic, genetic algorithms, learning automata, cloud computing, web systems, security and information assurance, cryptography, algorithms, biometrics, global navigation systems, e-services and e-business, and collaborative learning systems.

This year, we received a large number of high quality papers. Only high quality papers have been accepted. The acceptance ratio is about 43%. This is indicative of the diligent work of the technical program committee chairs, track chairs, technical program committee members and reviewers. The accepted papers come from all over the World with representation from academia, industry, business and government.

Many individuals have contributed to the success of this high caliber international conference. Our sincere appreciation goes to all authors including those whose papers were not included in the program. Many thanks are also due to our distinguished keynote speakers for their valuable contribution to the conference.

Special thanks are also due to the senior program chair, Prof. Isaac Woungang, for leading the technical program efforts. Thanks also are due to the other program chairs, namely Professors Malamati Louta, Hong Ji, and Charalambos Skiani. Many thanks also go to the technical program committee members and reviewers for their timely work and efforts.

Special thanks go to the publication chair, Prof. Daniel Cascado Caballero, for his outstanding work and dedication. Thanks to our dedicated webmasters Antonio Bueno and Aris Sako.

Special thanks go to the international publicity committee members especially, Dr. Essia Hamouda and Lei Shu.

We would like to also thank other members of the organizing committee, including the tutorials, the special sessions, and the workshops chairs as well as the various international liaisons. Special thanks are due to the international steering committee of the CITS.

We would like to thank the University of Piraeus for its generous support. Thanks are also due to the IEEE Communication Society, SCS and FTRA for their technical co-sponsorship of the conference.

Keynote Speech 1

Tuesday May 7, 9:45 - 10:45

The Human Layer in Decision-Making in Networked Environments

Prof. Ioannis Stavrakakis. National and Kapodistrian University of Athens, Greece

This talk will highlight how self-awareness and other human-related attributes impact on the networking landscape, regarding networked content management as well as resource selection in distributed collective awareness set ups. The first part will discuss issues and strategies that factor in behavioural aspects in classical networking problems, such as cooperative content caching/placement and forwarding. The second part will discuss the broad problem of resource selection/decision-making in competitive, distributed, networked environments that can lead to a “tragedy of the commons” effect. Emerging collective awareness/intelligence environments in smart cities (such as those implemented by mobile, smart-phone-carrying networked users) can on one hand facilitate resource discovery and, on the other hand, they create counter-productive congestion phenomena. The talk will explore decision-making in such environments, factoring in uncertainties and biases in (human-driven) decision making, also pointing to potential “less is more” phenomena.

Short Bio:

Professor Ioannis Stavrakakis (IEEE Fellow) (<http://cgi.di.uoa.gr/~istavrak/>) is Professor in the Department of Informatics and Telecommunications, in the National and Kapodistrian University of Athens. He received his Diploma in Electrical Engineering from the Aristotelian University of Thessaloniki and his Ph.D. in the same field from University of Virginia, USA. He served as Assistant Professor in CSEE, University of Vermont (USA), 1988-1994; Associate Professor of Electrical and Computer Engineering, in Northeastern University, Boston (USA), 1994-1999; Associate Professor of Informatics and Telecommunications, in the National and Kapodistrian University of Athens (Greece), 1999-2002; and as Professor since 2002. Teaching and research interests are focused on resource allocation protocols and traffic management for communication networks, with recent emphasis on: peer-to-peer, mobile, ad hoc, autonomic, delay tolerant and future Internet networking. His research has been published in over 210 scientific journals and conference proceedings and funded by NSF, DARPA, GTE, BBN and Motorola (USA) as well as Greek and European Union (IST, FET, FIRE) funding agencies. He has served repeatedly in NSF and EU-IST research proposal review panels and been involved in the TPC and organization of numerous conferences sponsored by IEEE, ACM, ITC and IFIP societies. ## Keynote Speech 2

Wednesday May 8, 9:00 - 10:00

Affective Multi-Modal User Interfaces

Prof. Maria Virvou. Department of Informatics, University of Piraeus, Greece

Affective features in user interfaces had been overlooked for many years in computer science until quite recently. As such, the research area of affective user interfaces is relatively new. Nevertheless, it has been explored with high intensity in the recent years. However, the area involves several problems that are not yet well understood and requires the combination of many up-to-date research advances in visual-facial processing, audio-lingual processing as well as cognitive reasoning, neural networks and other decision making mechanisms. This talk will focus on presenting approaches that combine different modalities in user interfaces such as keyboard, mouse, microphone, cameras, and animated agents in order to perform affect recognition and affect generation in a variety of multi-modal user interfaces ranging from virtual reality games to mobile educational applications. Reasoning mechanisms will be discussed and fusing approaches will be presented.
